

When Will I Know My Lord

I've traversed the hills
And thinking I was tired,
Fell upon mountains

I seek alone to rest
Where the view is plenty
And memory returns home

From wince I ventured
Where earth cried me,
I weakly seek rest too soon

For what devil lives in man
To aspire his sloth;
My crown is not given –

but, Rewarded.